Welcome////////////////

Welcome to our first quarterly newsletter (our first of many). We have tried to make it as informative as possible; reflecting both what we are working on currently and what we think is worth looking at in the world of art, design and VM to further stimulate your creative minds.

As you can see we are busy developing new product to add to our already comprehensive ranges and working on bespoke product for several clients. In the coming months we will be able to give you further insight to these projects and show you what else we have 'up our sleeves'.

As part of our increasing global reach; we are now fully social media'ed up! With pages on Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, Pinterest and LinkedIn and not forgetting our own website www.universaldisplay.co.uk. So not only can you see us online but we welcome you to visit any of our showrooms worldwide; London, New York and Xiamen to see us and our innovative products in person.

I hope that you enjoy the newsletter and look forward to seeing you soon.

A View from our Sculpting Studio

We thought you might like to see what we are developing in the studio:
At present we are sculpting a New Male collection for launch in our New York Showroom as part of the retail Design Collective December 2013. We are also sculpting a new female range, photos of this will be in the next issue of UDQ.

Adrian

I have been developing Surface a new range of abstract Textured heads, both Male and Female. I wanted to experiment with light and textures and the different effects you can get once cast. Above are two heads that I have produced, there will be additions to these throughout the summer.

From the 10th of July to the 25th of October our friends at the Richard Young Gallery they will be holding an exhibition featuring striking photographs of the legendary musician DAVID BOWIE. Spanning nearly 40 years and taken by Britain's foremost celebrity photographer Richard Young, this exhibition will showcase 16 photographs, including 6 new, never-before-seen images recently discovered from Richard's ever expanding, 2 million+ archive. The exhibition will comprise of both black & white and colour images of Bowie performing and socialising out on the town.

Richard Young first met David Bowie as a teenager before Bowie became famous. He recalls, "In 1964 when I was sixteen, I used to hang out in the Bataclan Club in Princes Street near Oxford Circus it was a very cool place to hang out in the day. It was there I met a guy called Geoff, we became friends through our love of music and French girls. Very often on Sunday afternoons a group of us would make our way to Geoff's place in South London where we would listen to soul music till the early hours. Occasionally a guy called David Jones would come over and hang out. Little was I to know who David would become! Sadly as it was over forty years ago and we were all in a psychedelic haze, I don't remember much else of what went on. I recently chatted with David about the old days and he couldn't remember much either! Geoff MacCormack went on to become David's back up singer and it wasn't until 1974 that I became a photographer."

Richard has been photographing David Bowie since 1976. He has covered all of Bowie's concerts, photocalls, premieres and parties. Richard never misses a chance to see him perform. According to Richard, "David Bowie is the most stylish man in music, his taste in clothes is impeccable, and not only that, he is one of the nicest men in the business also."
