

The future is looking GREEN!

Here at Universal Display, we believe in protecting the planet and those who live on it. We take that commitment seriously. We are always searching for new ways to reduce our footprint while maintaining the highest calibre quality products. Over the years we have used creative and innovative solutions to make a positive impact on the planet. From reducing the packaging on shipments and moving to recyclable materials to the development of the world's FIRST bamboo mannequin; being a sustainable and eco-conscious company is always a priority.

With the development of our bamboo mannequins now you can show your commitment to the planet as well. All of our ranges can be produced as bamboo. Additionally, the eco theme can continue if painting is required as we use water based paint for finishing.

We only have one planet so when we all work together we can ensure that it's around for future generations.
